Colors

We use dark blue to draw the learners attention to the job aid title and main headers. This is our main color and should be used in every design.

We use light blue to differentiate seperate information within a section. This works great as a divider line or in assets such as arrows. You won't use this color in every design but when you need it, it's great to have.

We use red to draw attention to very important notes and information such as food safety concerns. Use this sparingly within icons and never use it in text.

Much like red, we use yellow to draw attention to important notes and information but for less critical information such as where a button is placed. Use this sparingly with icons and never use it in text.

We use gray to add contrast to our designs and to call out important information that the learner needs to reference throughout the steps. You should mever use this as a font color or in icons.
